January

Good time to look for jobs, but the first two weeks might be slow as people return from holidays.

February

Excellent time to apply for jobs and look for jobs. This is the time of year when the greatest number of decision-makers are in the office together, so you can get a “Yes” much faster and start that new job you want!

March, April, May

These months are still very good times to apply for jobs, for a few reasons. The surge in hiring in Jan and Feb usually keeps some momentum until summer arrives.

June, July, August

Not the best times to apply for jobs, but still possible to find a great position. Just be prepared for a slower interview process, as more key staff taking vacations during the summer.

Sept & October

September and October are some of the best times to apply for jobs. Why? Hiring happens in waves. Summer was slow, so the early Fall speeds up.

November

Typically relatively good, as companies are trying to make their final hires before the year ends. However, the final one or two weeks of November can slow down a lot due to the upcoming holidays.

December

Typically a very slow month when not much will happen in terms of hiring for most companies.
